

In The News

Service Is ‘Most Important Thing’ For East New York Octogenarian

Five days a week, 88-year-old Virginia Clines can be found at her desk in the rectory of St. Michael-St. Malachy parish, East New York. She’s been volunteering at the parish for 75 years. (Photo Marie Elena Giossi)

THE TABLET

Diocesan News by Marie Elena Giossi Sept 26, 2018--Angela and Harry Clines names are inscribed on a bell inside the 125-foot tall tower at St. Michael’s Church in East New York. It is a testament to the Clines family’s faith and service to one of the diocese’s oldest churches, and that legacy continues today.

Virginia Clines has followed in her parents’ footsteps through her lifelong commitment to lay ministry in the Church, which began when she joined the children’s choir in seventh grade. Article...